

BioOutsource Announces Gerry MacKay as CEO

13th July 2009 Glasgow, Scotland- BioOutsource Ltd. announced today that Gerry MacKay has joined the company as Chief Executive Officer. Gerry comes to BioOutsource after spending 22 years in various senior management positions in the Biotechnology, Pharmaceutical and Semiconductor industries.

After joining Millipore in 1987, Gerry progressed to run various operations in Europe, Asia and North America before being appointed General Manager of all Millipore operations in Asia in 1999. In 2002 Gerry was part of the Executive team who spun a new company Mykrolis out of Millipore in an IPO on NYSE. Gerry then held a number of Executive and General Management positions for Mykrolis and Entegris in both the US and Asia before returning home to Scotland with his family in 2008.

Commenting on the appointment, Gillian Lees, Chairman of BioOutsource, said, "The appointment of Gerry MacKay as CEO for BioOutsource is a commitment to our strategy for sustained growth. Gerry brings a wealth of experience in commercial operations and a deep knowledge of the Biotechnology market, which will be important to BioOutsource as we look to expand our operations and reach globally."

Responding to his appointment, Gerry Mackay said: "I am delighted to be joining the team at BioOutsource. I believe the company is uniquely placed in our space with a range of GMP bio-safety and quality control testing services backed up by a strong commitment to outstanding customer service. Our aim is to create a global company with sustained revenue growth during the next five years"
